We Pose Four Questions To Council Candidates

Once again the News Review is posing questions to all the candidates in the November 6 election for Greenbelt City Council. The questions selected by our editorial staff are ones which we believe to be of general interest to the community. We intend to publish the candidates' responses in each of the next four issues. Responses are limited to 300 words. If a response exceeds that length, we will cut it off at the limit. Editing will be limited to correction of minor typographical errors and missing punctuation marks. The order of responses will be randomly selected and change with each issue.

Here are this year's questions to the candidates:

1. Should the city buy the portion of the building at Roosevelt Center that houses the Greenbelt Theatre? If the city purchases the movie house, what should it do with it? Should the theater operation be subsidized with city funds?

2. On three occasions this paper has criticized the current city council about holding executive (secret) sessions at which the public has been excluded. (According to Mayor Davis, there were 14 such sessions in 2000.) What will be your policy on holding such meetings and making decisions at them?

3. Although the current turmoil and business slowdown may delay progress, Metroland LLC has obtained preliminary approval for Greenbelt Station, a massive development along the east side of the Metro tracks from Greenbelt Road to the Beltway and including the Metro station property. It is to have a mixture of retail commercial and entertainment businesses in a mall and/or main street development, office buildings and residential uses with buildings ranging up to 20 stories in height. The project requires a full interchange of the Beltway for the Metro station area. What support or opposition to this project should the city render?

4. The city receives an allocation of open space funds each year from the state. The allocations can be accumulated until enough becomes available for a project. The current city council has made the following policy decisions relating to the use of these funds which can be used for either land acquisition or park development (1/2 of the funds, only): a) use some of funds to purchase the Sunrise property at the end of Hanover Drive in Greenbelt East; b) make available $100,000 to help purchase the Jaeger property located outside the city limits on the south side of the entrance to Westchester Park on Kenilworth Avenue for the National Park Service so that the land can be added to Greenbelt Park (which is within the city limits); and c) use only for land acquisition and not for any park improvements such as playground safety improvements or comfort stations at Buddy Attick (Greenbelt Lake) Park. For what purposes do you feel open space funds should be used?

Three New Miss Greenbelts Begin Their 2001-02 Reign

by Marat Moore

Their tiaras sparkling, the three Miss Greenbelts — Little Miss, Junior Miss and the reigning Miss Greenbelt — made one of their first public appearances September 15 after being crowned on the final night of the pageant at the Labor Day Festival. The pageant winners were interviewed — and, in some cases, performed — as part of "An Evening with Friends" variety show at the Greenbelt Arts Center.

The pageant, which took place over three nights of the Labor Day Festival, drew a packed crowd for the final event on Sunday, September 2. All of the pageant contestants had enthusiastic supporters in the audience who cheered the girls as they walked on stage.

Katerie Hull, an 18-year-old sophomore at the University of Maryland, won the Miss Greenbelt title and was also named Miss Congeniality for the second year in a row. Hull is a third generation Greenbelter whose mother Rena was Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen two years ago. Katerie was sponsored by the Greenbelt Swim Team.

Growing up in Greenbelt, she appeared in productions of the Greenbelt Arts Center's Youth Theatre and participated on the swim team as a competitor and, more recently, as a coach. Her career goal, she says, is "clinical

Children of pre-school through elementary school ages can get into the Halloween spirit with an acting workshop by Ian Blackwell Rogers of the comedy improv troupe GAC reflex. A mask-making activity will be offered with the Greenbelt Mamas and Papas club. The Friends of the Greenbelt Library will read stories about ghost and spirit traditions from various cultures. Children's activities will take place between 1 and 3:30 p.m.

For teens and adults, a more contemplative performance and discussion program will be presented from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. The community is invited to reflect on themes of national identity, spirituality, and loss through a series of presentations. Participation is anticipated from the Mishkan Torah Choir. The Greenbelt Arts Center will present a selection from the upcoming play, "Belongings." Greenbelt composer and music historian Harold Anderson will contribute "Songs Stories Tell," a lecture/performance on the topic of anthems as expressions of identity. Greenbelt Recreation Department instructor Laura Schandelman will present two provocative dance solos: "Independence Day" and "Bowsprit." Following the

by Joan Marie Conway,
Research Chemist, USDA,
Beltsville Human Nutrition
Research Center

On September 24 at 5:30 p.m. the tornado that traveled north on Route 1 from College Park and the University of Maryland struck the west side of USDA's (Agricultural Research Service), Henry A. Wallace Beltsville Agriculture Research Center (BARC). In the aftermath the damage to the research and government property was found to be extensive.

Fifteen BARC buildings on the west side of Route 1, some which date to 1939, suffered damage to their roofs and windows. Building 001 suffered the most window damage and the laboratories within were damaged by rain and wind. Early the next day, the BARC Safety Office and local HAZMAT teams inspected and cleaned up chemical spills. Radiological safety of the laboratories was ensured.

The research greenhouses suffered the most significant damage. The Range 1 greenhouses were completely leveled and the glass was blown out of the remaining greenhouses. The impact on food, forage, and horticultural research projects has yet to be determined.

All of the 70-year-old willow oaks that dotted the BARC-West property were destroyed. Most trees surrounding the National Agricultural Library were snapped or uprooted. More than 50 government vehicles were damaged or totally destroyed. Like all of its Route 1 neighbors, BARC was without electrical power and telephone service. The power lines along that segment of Route 1 were completely downed, with utility poles uprooted and scattered like toothpicks. At the time of this writing, no timetable had been set for resumption of service, although PEPCO and Verizon crews were working hard.

No damage was reported on BARC-East, which is home to all of the animal and human nutrition research laboratories.

Several USDA officials inspected the damage on September 25, including, Secretary of Agriculture, Ann Veneman; Dr. Phyllis Johnson, the center director of the Beltsville Area; Dr. Ron Korcak, associate center director; and Dr. Floyd Horn, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Research Center.

Tornadoes Hit University, Laurel

by James Giese

The city of Greenbelt was only a few miles off the path of the Monday September 24 tornado that caused extensive damage to the University of Maryland and the City of College Park. Greenbelt suffered very little damage according to city officials. Director of Public Works Kenny Hall reported two fallen trees on city streets, one on Ora Glen Drive in Greenbelt East and the other on Springhill Drive in Springhill Lake.

On Tuesday, a five-member Public Works crew with a truck and chipper and chain saws was sent to College Park to assist in clearing streets of fallen trees. College Park vehicles also obtained gasoline at the Greenbelt maintenance facility because power was out at that city's facility.

Power was off in a number of areas, primarily in the Springhill

News Review in Crisis: Costs Increase, Volunteers Decrease

by James Giese,
Secretary, Board of Directors

The Greenbelt News Review has had a tenuous existence. It has never been a profit maker, and has never tried to be. Over the years the paper has faced serious challenges. Still it has surmounted these obstacles and published continuously since its inception almost 64 years ago.

Today, your local newspaper faces more challenges. As a co-operative made up of many volunteer workers, we face an increasingly complex and costly production and distribution process to create your weekly paper. We need both your help and your money to meet these challenges. Without the help and support of the Greenbelt community, the Greenbelt News Review cannot continue to operate as it always has, bringing you the most comprehensive coverage of what goes on in Greenbelt.

Costs Are Up

Recently we switched print shops when the old one went out of business. Our new one, Lynn Eppard and Associates, now brings you a better-looking newspaper and is working well with our group of volunteers. But our costs for production have greatly increased. As a result, we lose money with every issue. Although reserves have covered these losses, they will not last much longer. We have to bring in more revenue.

Recently the News Review Board of Directors met to deal with these financial problems and decided on a variety of actions. These include raising our advertising rates, seeking out more advertising, doing more production work in-house to reduce costs and asking our readers to make voluntary subscription payments to help preserve our reserves. Last week we announced that the paper's advertising rates would be increased November 2. In a later issue, we will tell you about our voluntary subscription program. This is not the best of times to raise rates or to seek contributions, but our reserves will not wait until there is a good time.

Without more volunteers to help us, we cannot meet the other two objectives.

If you consider this newspaper important to you and to our community, we ask for your help now.

More Trouble

If losing money on each issue and needing more volunteer help isn't enough of a problem for us right now, we are faced with another critical one. Mary Halford, our business manager and one of the mainstays among our volunteers, has resigned. Mary kept our office going. She was responsible for setting up our computer system. She kept our books straight and guided us on how big our paper could be based upon the amount of adver-

Letters to the Editor

Not Entitled

As a concerned Greenbelt resident who is looking forward to the next election, I have been dismayed that the issue of buffer zones around Greenbelt Lake has not been adequately addressed in the press by our city council. When Jean Newcomb raised the question of whether or not the lake, in fact, has city land as a buffer zone, the city allowed the issue to be refocused into sniping over aesthetics and forebays. Meanwhile, city property behind houses bordering the lake continues to be cleared. From what I have learned recently from Ms. Newcomb, maps show the city owns more than enough land for a buffer zone. Why does the city council continue to allow city property to be destroyed by home owners who have taken it upon themselves to destroy local wildlife habitats?

Mark Siegel and Leonard Wallace pointed out in their letter two weeks ago that, "the residents who actually live along the lake, who moved to those locations and pay a higher premium (in property taxes) every month for the privilege of seeing the lake from their backyard, will be denied the privilege to be able to see from their backyard what has always been there." What has always been there has been city property that is being cut down, with a sense of entitlement that should not be tolerated. The loss of city property is borne by all the residents of Greenbelt, not just those who border the lake. The city council appears to be pandering to this sense of entitlement when they should be stopping the destruction of our city's natural land.

Landscape Altered

This letter is in reference to the changes that were made in the park adjacent to 2 Court Northway.

I know about the concerns people in our community have about the safety of our playground equipment and play areas. I agree that we need to make some changes. Tax dollars need to be spent to purchase safer equipment and have surface under the equipment that are designed to prevent injuries.

My yard abuts the park. I have lived here for 20 years and have greatly appreciated being able to look out my upstairs and downstairs windows everyday onto a woodland park with trees and grass right next to my home.

The week of September 15, city staff built a 12-inch high L-shaped wooden enclosure that covers about 1,500 square feet of the park and filled it with woodchips. A large new 15 foot high sliding board is within 13 yards of my living room window. The height of this equipment places it in a direct sightline from my second story windows. No amount of landscaping in my yard will screen this from view.

Quite frankly, the overall impact of these 'improvements' is worse than anything I could ever have imagined. It has drastically altered the landscape and character of this greenspace. I do not object to the choice of equipment, but the placement so close to my home is unacceptable.

When Greenbelt was built over 60 years ago, it was built as a planned community. Our playgrounds and greenspaces are an integral part of our community. I see no evidence of planning in what has happened with the greenspace at the Northway park. With the revenues available to our city, we can afford to hire a qualified professional consultant to plan the rehabilitation of our city's greenspaces and playgrounds in a way that meets the needs of our children and preserves the character and beauty of these spaces with designs that please the eye.

Give Kids a Chance

I would like to write this letter on behalf of the teenagers that hang out in the Center. I am not one of those teenagers, but have a problem with some of the merchants' complaints. I myself don't condone some of the behavior displayed in the Center. But if my memory serves me right every petition ever brought before council by one or more of the teenagers in this town since I moved here several years ago has been shot down as soon as they were brought up. I remember specifically a couple of years ago a teenager in the Center asked me if I would sign a petition for a skate park within the city limits. Feeling this was a good idea I signed the petition. Instead of ever hearing anything about this petition after it was first presented to council it was put on the back burner and has been there ever since.

When we took a vote to see what we would do with the old Center School, I voted to turn it into a community center because of the idea of having things there that our youth would enjoy doing. Little did I know that when the city meant youth they meant senior citizens and children in grades K-6. No teenager I know that hangs in the Center enjoys making pottery or doing any of the other activities provided by the Community Center.

They can't use the Youth Center without having a recreation card. Did you know that the city is one of maybe only a handful of communities that require such a pass to be able to use taxpayer funded facilities? Why not issue these passes to the teenagers of the city free of charge provided that they can show proof of residency.

The Old Curmudgeon

"Mr. Curmudgeon's apartment was hit by a tornado? How can you tell?"

I. J. PARKER ©2001

Why not give them their skate park or some activities that they would be interested in. I talked to these children tonight and was told that if the city would hold skate parties at the Community Center or the Youth Center, they would go because they enjoy roller blading and roller skating.

Why not give these youth something creative to do instead of ridiculing them? I remember growing up and the underpass by the Center was painted every few years by the youth of this town. It was sort of like a tastefully done graffiti wall.

I would seriously consider these as options for our youth. Constant ridicule does nothing to help. Remember that one day these children will be our leaders and taxpayers the same as you and I. Give them a chance and give them some positive attention.

Bring Flag Back

I would like to catch the attention of the person(s) that "borrowed" our American Flag late on Thursday, September 20 or early Friday, September 21. We just moved to this Hillside Road address two weeks ago to the day. We don't have much, but we have our American Spirit and would like very much to have our flag back. I understand that flags are hard to come by these days but we will replace it. The point is that the flag was given to me by my mother, who's been gone for 16 years now. We've taken very good care of it and would very much like to have our flag back. So if you could please return it, unharmed, it would be greatly appreciated. Thank you.

Help School Kids Plant Trees, Shrubs

Pam Bauer, the fifth grade science teacher at Greenbelt Elementary School, needs some volunteers to help her out on Friday, October 5.

She and the Maryland Department of Natural Resources will be teaching the fifth graders about how trees help the environment and improve the quality of the Chesapeake Bay and the nearby creeks and rivers. Students will plant trees and understory shrubs on three sites behind the school to prevent erosion, create biodiversity, and learn by experience.

Volunteers are needed to work with small groups of students as they prepare the sites and plant the trees and shrubs. There are two shifts to choose from: 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. or 12:10 to 2:30 p.m. To sign up, call David Lange at 301-577-3686. Three to five volunteers are needed for each shift.

This project is supported by the funds many Marylanders donate to the Chesapeake Bay Trust when they get their license plates or by using the checkoff box on their income tax forms.

Ballot Order

On Sept. 24, the candidates running for City Council gathered to draw for their place on the ballot. The results are as follows: Judith Davis, Thomas White, Alan Turnbull, Edward Putens, Rodney Roberts, Sylvia Lewis, and Kelby Brick.

Sign Order

A number of years ago, council decided that rather than have numerous individual signs throughout the city, a sign would be designed with all candidates listed and placed in strategic spots around the city.

The drawing by the candidates produced the following results: The three names across the top are Kelby Brick, Alan Turnbull, and Judith Davis. The middle three are Edward Putens, Thomas White, and Rodney Roberts. Since there are nine positions and only seven candidates, Sylvia Lewis occupies the last line by herself.

Williams-Hibbs

Brad Hibbs, son of Shirley and Ray Hibbs of Greenbelt, and Karla Williams, daughter of Clara Williams and the late John Williams of Roanoke, Va., were married on June 9, 2001 at the Fourth Presbyterian Church in Bethesda.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by her brother, Dr. Michael Williams of Hillsborough, N.J., and given in marriage by her mother. In addition to her matron of honor, Jayne McGinn of Fairfax, Va., Karla was attended by eight bridesmaids. Her niece, Amy Williams, was flower girl.

Brad's father was his best man. His brother-in-law, David Newell, and his four brothers, Steve, Tom, Gary and Jeff, were groomsmen. In addition, five of Brad's friends were also groomsmen. Cooper Hibbs, nephew of the groom, was the ring bearer.

She paid our bills and other obligations, invested any capital funds, paid our taxes and did all those great things that accountants do. She saw to the mailing of our paid mail subscriptions. She even supervised the cleaning of the office. Mary was a gem, and we miss her very much.

Fortunately, others are now doing some of the work that we relied upon Mary to do. But we still need more help. In particular, we need an accountant to keep our books and see that our tax reports are in order and taxes paid.

Other Volunteers

While the help of an accountant is our most critical need just now, our paper relies on volunteers to do the many jobs required to produce each weekly edition. Because we need to bring in more money, advertising representatives are a particularly critical need. Whether in the form of coming to our office to work the ad desk on Mondays or Tuesdays, or reaching out to community businesses from your home or at their door to solicit ads, we greatly need volunteers. We do pay commissions for new ads solicited. If you think you can help, let us know.

It doesn't matter what you think you are able to do. We probably can use your services. We always need people knowledgeable about computers, desktop publishing and word processing as well as other office machines. Are you into the internet? We have our own web pages and need help with that. And, of course, we can always use writers, editors and proof readers. No special skills? How about running some errands or doing an odd job or two?

This is your newspaper. If you feel it is important to you, then it is important that you try to help us.

Obituaries

Adelle L. Plummer

Adelle L. Plummer, 90, Greenbelt resident from 1973 to 1995, died on Saturday, September 15, 2001, in Rockville.

Born in Westchester, Iowa, she spent her career as an elementary school teacher and librarian. When she retired, she moved to Greenbelt to be close to her sister, Anna Gregersen. Greenbelt was ideal for Adelle; she lived on Parkway, and since she did not drive, she was able to walk to the Co-op for groceries, and to the library, and to visit her family on Ridge Road.

Adelle was also a member of Hope Lutheran Church, College Park, which she attended regularly. She will always be remembered by her family as a devoted friend and companion. In addition to her sister, Anna, Adelle is survived by her brother-in-law Carl Gregersen, niece Susan Gregersen, nephew Carl Gregersen III of Greenbelt, and nephew John Oliver of Springfield, Illinois.

A funeral service was held on September 21, 2001, at the National Lutheran Home. Memorial contributions may be made to the National Lutheran Home, 9701 Veirs Drive, Rockville, MD 20850-3462.

Lake-Beltway Plaza section of the city. Many traffic signals were without power including many intersections along Greenbelt Road from Kenilworth Avenue west, according to Lt. Thomas Kemp of the Greenbelt Police who was on duty at the time. The signals on Kenilworth north of Greenbelt Road were also without power, except for the lights at the ramp from the west-bound Beltway (northbound I-95). The first objective of the police was to establish control at the intersections without lights. The midnight shift was called in early. Barricades and traffic cones were used to channel the multi-lane traffic. At some intersections, movement was restricted so that one officer could control movement.

At the University

After the intersections were secured, some officers responded to the University where they surveyed damage, gathered in a police staging area and heard remarks from Governor Parris Glendening. However, university student police aides had responded to the emergency and the Greenbelt police were returned home in about an hour-and-a-half.

At the time of the tornado, police were responding to a medical emergency in the 6900 block of Springhill Drive. Corporals James Donovan and Caroline Breck saw the twister from their vehicles as they responded. Chief James Craze also saw the twister from the parking lot at the Greenbelt Police Facility.

Kemp describes the scene at the University as "incredible." "I've never seen anything like that," he said, noting that he has been a police officer and volunteer firefighter for over 20 years. He said it looked like someone had taken a bunch of match box cars and swept them into a pile. It took a big Johnson crane to undo the pile of some 100 cars, all of them badly damaged. The tornado picked up one large truck and set it down in the middle of a tennis court.

Kemp said that Craze had been to Laurel on Tuesday to see if assistance was needed. However, by then the Laurel Police had everything under control. Craze was amazed at the damage suffered in that city, Kemp said.

The Springhill Lake Recreation Center was without power until midday Tuesday, making the center unusable. Staff remained at the center ready to reopen for business once the power was turned back on, according to Assistant Recreation Director Harry James.

Injuries Reported

James reported that two persons with Greenbelt connections were injured at the university. Rebecca Lundregan, a lifeguard at the aquatic center, is a university student. She was hit with a bunch of debris and received a number of cuts and abrasions. Robin Dwyer, daughter-in-law to the Tom Dwyers of Crescent Road, was in the Fire and Rescue temporary building when it was torn apart by the tornado. She is being treated for injuries received, James said.

James and his wife were without power in Berwyn Heights and were unaware that a tornado had passed through. They decided to go shopping. He said it took them an hour-and-a-half to drive down Rhode Island Avenue to Sunnyside Road where they turned over to Kenilworth and returned home.

Radio Warnings

This reporter was sitting in a car in a Beltway Plaza parking lot with a partial view to the southwest at the time of the tornado. The all news station on the car radio was announcing tornado warnings, but the locations announced were behind the location of the storm, the radio first reporting the tornado in Arlington, Virginia. At that time, the westward sky had a roiling dark cloud, but lighter skies were beginning to appear to the south. It was clear that the dark cloud was moving northward and not towards Greenbelt. Suddenly the radio announced warnings for northern Prince George's and Montgomery Counties and then said that a tornado was sighted near College Park airport. By that time it was obvious that the weather condition southward towards the airport was better and that the dark cloud was now north of Greenbelt Road. As my wife and I drove north on Cherrywood Lane, the radio issued warnings for Beltsville and Laurel. We saw the dark cloud once again to the north-west already over Beltsville as we crossed the Beltway. Traffic on the Beltway seemed to be at a halt. Kenilworth Avenue traffic was backed up northbound as it usually is during rush hour. The traffic lights were out at the Crescent Road intersection, but most cars were moving cautiously through the intersection.

Genealogical Group To Meet October 3

The Prince George's County Genealogical Society will present Mary McCampbell Bell, CLS, CGL, speaking on "Virginians: How They Died - Virginia Probate Records" from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, October 3, at the Greenbelt Library. Those attending should park in the rear and use the ground-level entrance.

Prior to the talk, a brief business meeting will be held to update attendees on upcoming society activities. A short refreshment break will follow. Guests are always welcome. For further information, call 301-262-2063 (Wednesday only).

October Is Named Peace Month by City Council

by Kevin Hammett & Konrad Herling

This October we celebrate the anniversary of the founding of the United Nations, the birthday of Eleanor Roosevelt, and for the first time, the City's Millennium Task Force's Peace Month. Greenbelt, along with communities across the globe, was invited through an appeal from the Nobel Peace Prize Laureates, to promote nonviolence at every level of our societies. The goal is to make the century's first decade, "The Decade for a Culture of Nonviolence."

The array of programs address peaceful conflict resolution on a local and international level. An informational brochure and the community pledge proposed by the Community Relations Advisory Board and adopted by Council at its September 24 meeting address how we as a community have and can continue to create a peaceful environment. The month will feature study groups, which will meet in the Community Center on Tuesdays, 7:30 to 9 p.m. beginning Oct. 2.

Character Education

Eleanor Roosevelt High School's Character Education Program which will include a keynote speech by Dr. Suheil Bushrui, on Thursday, October 11. Bushrui, a professor in the University of Maryland's Center for International Development and Conflict Management, also holds the Bahai Chair for World Peace at the University. He is familiar with the Nobel Laureates appeal, and has spoken on this topic to European audiences. There will also be a peace concert sponsored by the Greenbelt Arts Center on October 20.

The month-long program will also afford Greenbelt's residents an opportunity to learn more about what services the city already provides in terms of conflict resolution, be it at home, in school, or in the local neighborhood. Perhaps the broader goal can be understood more easily by reviewing the community pledge. Proposed by the Community Relations Advisory Board and adopted by the City Council on September 24, the pledge reads:

"The strength of Greenbelt is diverse people living together in a spirit of cooperation. We celebrate people of many cultures, faiths, and races living together. By sharing together, all are enriched. We pledge to foster a community which is respectful, safe, and fair for all people."

Eleanor Roosevelt would find herself in agreement with this goal, even as a strong advocate of universal human rights. She wrote in 1948, "Where, after all, do universal human rights begin? In small places, close to home - so close and so small that they cannot be seen on any maps of the world. Yet they are the world of the individual person; the neighborhood he lives in; the school or college he attends; the factory, farm or office where he works. Such are the places where every man, woman, and child seeks equal justice, equal opportunity, equal dignity without discrimination. Unless these rights have meaning there, they have little meaning anywhere. Without concerted citizen action to uphold them close to home, we shall look in vain for progress in the larger world."

She was released to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a District court Commissioner.

Nurse Practitioner Treated M. Atta

Nancy English, family nurse practitioner with the Greenbelt Family Practice, reacted with disbelief when she heard Mohamed Atta's name mentioned a few days after the hijackings. Atta is suspected by the FBI to have been at the controls of the American Airlines flight from Boston that crashed into the World Trade Center.

According to media reports, including a recent Baltimore Sun report, English confirmed that she had treated Atta, but declined to give any other details regarding her patient. The medical practice contacted the FBI, who then took custody of Atta's records.

Another report, in Monday's Washington Post, reports that Atta led a group of Middle Eastern men who visited Belle Grade State Municipal Airport in the Florida Everglades to inquire about crop dusters. Ole Hass Recital at UMCP Features Schubert's Song Cycle Greenbelt resident Ole Hass, tenor, and Airee Loh, piano, are performing Franz Schubert's song cycle Winterreise (Winter Journey) at the University of Maryland, College Park (UMCP), in the Gildenhorn Recital Hall of the new Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center on Tuesday, October 2, at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

The song cycle expresses the grieving process of a young man, following the loss of his love. Spite, anger, grief, sadness, and loneliness are presented as moments in a development of an inner life, which he compares to the barren winter landscape in which he travels. The performance is in German. Translations and program notes will be provided. The cycle is comprised of 24 songs, lasting a little more than an hour, with a ten-minute intermission.

Hass has been heard in recital, church, and opera in the Washington area since he arrived with his wife, mezzo-soprano Ingrid Cowan, in Greenbelt in the fall of 1998. This is Hass' last dissertation recital at the University of Maryland and he is looking forward to completing his Doctor of Musical Arts degree in the spring of 2002.

Pianist Airee Loh holds a Master of Music degree from the Juilliard School in New York and is pursuing a D.M.A. in Piano Performance at UMCP.

Katerie Hull, the new Miss Greenbelt, waves to the crowds along the parade route.

social work with a focus on helping children," and she studies sociology toward that end.

She displayed her performance talents at the variety show by doing a swing dance to "Put a Lid on It" with Deborah Bekele, the first runner-up for Miss Greenbelt.

In the year ahead, she is most excited about new opportunities for community service, particularly "work that I can carry forward, with the schools, the police department and other volunteer organizations." She's also looking forward to Greenbelt's festivities during Halloween and the Festival of Lights.

Junior Miss

Marie Crenwelge, 13, was crowned Junior Miss Greenbelt for 2001. An eighth-grade honor roll student at St. Hugh's Catholic school, her academic interests include science and art, and she also plays the clarinet and enjoys needlework and sewing. Her pageant sponsor was Tim Uber of Long & Foster Realtors of College Park.

She hopes to become a marine biologist, a goal boosted by a recent opportunity to meet Dr. Robert Ballard, who discovered the undersea wreck of the Titanic. In an interview with Konrad Herling at the variety show, Marie admitted to a few butterflies during the pageant events. With the pageant behind her, she's looking forward to "having a good time and showing people how wonderful this experience is." In particular, she says, she has learned poise and feels more comfortable with public speaking.

Little Miss

Jenny Lindvall, 10, was crowned the new Little Miss Greenbelt. Sponsored by Bob's House of Bases, she is a native Swede who has learned English and pursued many activities, including her school interests of science, math and art as well as swimming, gymnastics and music. Her future goal is to become a music teacher.

At the variety show, she sang and performed "Summer Nights" from "Grease" with a high-energy group of young performers. During her interview, she said she was "very excited" when her name was called, and enjoyed being in the Labor Day parade even though "it was a little hot."

The runners-up at the Miss Greenbelt Pageant were also honored with flowers and a satin sash during the final pageant event. They included for Miss Greenbelt, first runner-up Deborah Bekele, second runner-up Stephanie Danielson and third runner-up Alicia Saunders. In the Junior Miss Greenbelt category, the runners-up were Brittanie Stewart (first), Kimberly Wynkoop (second) and Lauren Decker (third). The Little Miss Greenbelt runners-up were Erin Grady (first), Devin Fendley (second) and Melissa Blue (third).

A tearful Maria Crenwelge is crowned Junior Miss Greenbelt.

But on that warm night, as the pageant drew to a close amid the cheers of family and friends, it was clear that all the contestants were winners, and outstanding examples of Greenbelt's commitment to its children and youth.

In the coming year, the city's three queens will keep busy, says Natasha Jewell, the pageant's executive director. The girls will make a minimum of two appearances each month. Watch for their next event at Schrom Fest at Schrom Hills Park on October 13.
